

General Tips

1. Organize

We often find it frustrating when we can't find our keys or mobile phone in the morning just before it's time to walk out the front door. Well, you can experience the same feeling when you're ready to teach a skill and the materials are not there. Organizing materials, even into a large bin, can assist with being able to find all-purpose materials as well as some favorite toys.

2. If you have a question, ask

Often we can explain a topic or idea that sound okay at the time, but when you think about it later you may not be sure if you like the idea or not. Don't worry... In such a situation, feel free to ask us at any time for clarification or if we can make a change to the plan.

3. Be consistent

Days, situations, and plans can change at the drop of a dime. We are all aware of the many different events that can come up, but being as consistent and diligent as possible with your program can assist with attaining the goals that have been set.

4. Get Involved

Take some time to review the information that is in your child's program books. The information contained in the book is akin to grades from school and it is important to know how your child is doing.

If you are a team member, we encourage you to take a more active role by letting the consultants know about successes and difficulties that you are experiencing. Remember the proverb, "It takes a village to raise a child."

5. Take some time to relax

With everything that's going on in life, it can sometimes be difficult to have the time to do anything, but get to the next task. Trust me, we understand, but we encourage you to set aside some time for yourself and your family to relax, have some fun, and enjoy each other's company. Besides...the days go by fast enough.

"Building durable skills... together!"

© 2016 Breakthrough Developmental Services, LLC
<http://www.BDSHelps.com>